

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

Welcome to the web site of The Moore Law Group. The information on this page governs your use of The Moore Law Group web site. Your use of the site is your acknowledgement that you understand the terms and conditions set out here and that you agree to comply with these terms and conditions. If you are unable to accept and abide by these terms, please do not use this site or its information. Also note that we may change these terms and conditions from time to time without otherwise providing notice. You should refer to this material whenever using the site.

Please read the following information carefully.

No Attorney-Client Relationship Formed:

All materials on this website are provided by The Moore Law Group for informational purposes only and do not contain legal advice, legal opinions or any other form of advice regarding any specific facts or circumstances. The transmission and receipt of information contained on the web site neither form nor constitute an attorney-client relationship with The Moore Law Group, or any of its owners, associates or consultants. Any use of the information contained on this web site or transmittal of information from emails on this web site do not give you a reasonable basis for a belief that that use creates an attorney client relationship.

Transmission of Information:

If you would like The Moore Law Group to represent you, the best way to initiate a discussion about that representation is to call the firm at (800) 506-2652 or email us at inquiries@collectmoore.com. It is important that we not create a conflict of interest between you and any of our current or past clients. This protects both you and them. Therefore, under no circumstance should you provide us with information pertaining to a matter without first speaking to one of our attorneys and receiving confirmation that the appropriate conflict checks have been cleared and the firm determines that it is otherwise able to accept the engagement.

If you email or otherwise provide information, materials or documents prior to your receipt of such confirmation and an appropriate engagement, we may not be able to treat that information as privileged, confidential or protected information. In addition, we can represent a party adverse to you even if the information you submit to us could be used against you in that matter.

Limitation of Liability:

Although The Moore Law Group makes reasonable efforts to keep material on this web site current, please understand that laws, regulations, other legal authorities and other information change quickly and may not be fully reflected on this site without delay. Therefore, you should not act upon any information on this website without seeking professional counsel. The Moore Law Group makes no warranties, representations or claims of any kind with respect to any of the information on this web site, including without limitation the accuracy, completeness and suitability for any purpose of this information. Under no circumstance shall The Moore Law Group or any of its partners, associates, consultants or agents involved in the creation or delivery of the material on this web site be liable to you or anyone else as a result of damages from your access or use of material on this web site.

Links:

Some links within our web site may lead you to other sites (third-party sites). The Moore Law Group does not have control over those sites and is not responsible for their content or your reliance on the information contained there. Our links to third-party sites do not necessarily create an endorsement or approval of any content on those sites. Once you go to a third-party site, you do so at your own risk. You are subject to the terms, conditions of use and privacy policies of the third-party site.

Copyright:

The Moore Law Group claims a copyright to the material on this web site. You may use this material only for personal informational purposes. If you wish to use the material for any other purposes, you must have the expressed consent of The Moore Law Group to do so. All rights reserved. Copyright 2011.

Limitations on Use:

You are hereby notified that the owners of the email addresses published on this site do not wish to receive and you are prohibited from sending unsolicited commercial email messages for services or products to the email addresses provided on this site.

You are prohibited from attempting to interfere with the proper function of this site.

You are prohibited from forging any email addresses.

You are prohibited from framing any content of this web site.

You are responsible for all damages and costs resulting from these actions in any way and from any illegal actions involving the web site of The Moore Law Group whether or not enumerated here. If you have any questions about your obligations set out here, you should contact The Moore Law Group to clarify your questions.

Indemnification:

You must defend, indemnify and hold harmless The Moore Law Group, its partners, associates and consultants from any claims, damages, costs and expenses resulting from your failure to comply with terms set out here. If you have any questions about this obligation, you should contact The Moore Law Group to clarify your questions.

Disclosures and Disclaimers:

Under Rule 1-400 of the California Rules of Professional Conduct, this web site is a “communication” that is made by lawyers at The Moore Law Group who are members of the State Bar of California and addresses the availability of professional employment. In other states, this web site may be deemed an advertisement.

In the event you believe this web site does not comply with the rules of the state where you reside, you should disregard its contents and, if you wish, seek information about the services provided by The Moore Law Group from other resources or directly from the firm, its partners, associates or consultants.

Some The Moore Law Group lawyers are certified as specialists by states or bona fide organizations granting independent certification. To the extent the status as a certified specialist is designated on this site, you are advised that in accordance with Illinois Rule of Professional Conduct Rule 7.2(c)(2) the Supreme Court of Illinois does not recognize the certification of specialization and such certification is not a requirement to practice law in Illinois.

In accordance with Rule 2-101(e)(3) of the New York Code of Professional Responsibility, you are advised that prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome.

In accordance with Rule 7.2(g) of the Wyoming Rules of Professional Conduct, you are advised that the Wyoming State Bar does not certify any lawyer as a specialist or expert. Anyone considering a lawyer should independently investigate the lawyer’s credentials and ability and not rely upon advertising and self-proclaimed expertise.

In accordance with Rule 7.2(f) of the Missouri Rules of Professional Conduct, you are advised that the choice of a lawyer is an important decision and should not be based on advertisements alone.

In accordance with Rule 7.2(e) of the Alabama Rules of Professional Conduct, you are advised that no representation is made that the quality of the legal services to be performed is greater than the quality of legal services performed by other lawyers.

Harvey M. Moore is responsible for the contents of this web site. The mailing address of The Moore Law Group is P.O. Box 25145, Santa Ana, CA 92799-5145.